Dictation Contest (PR1, 中級) No. 100

Hey, guys! How's it going?

As you may know, this is our one hundredth dictation contest video! Ooh, finally in triple figures! Ah, that is a lot of videos.

The style and content of these videos has changed a little bit from when we first started doing them, at a time when our lesson schedule was very different, but we are really glad that you are still watching them and trying your best with them. We think that these videos are a good way to practice your listening skills – and spelling skills – but we also want to provide something interesting and entertaining for you to enjoy at home. So, if you have any ideas for future videos, please let us know!

Okay, guys, thanks again for watching any or all of our one hundred videos, and I'll see you next time.

Bye-bye!

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 100

Hey, guys! How're you doing?

Hope you're all still staying healthy and safe. And I want to thank you for joining me for what is our one hundredth dictation contest video!

Yeah, that's right, one hundred! I can't quite believe we've done so many!

We started doing these dictation videos a few months ago, when the school was briefly closed, as a kind of extra exercise for our students to be doing while there weren't any regular classes. We felt that they would provide some well-needed listening and general comprehension practice, while also providing some potentially entertaining content that would remind you how fun our English lessons could be. Since then our schedule has pretty much returned to normal and so the nature of these videos has also changed a little bit. But we're hoping that you are still watching them from time to time and finding them interesting and useful.

We may try something different again fairly soon, to try and bring back some of that entertainment factor, and so if you have any suggestions for what we could do in these videos, please let us know!

Alright, guys, well, until then – and as always – study hard, stay safe, and I'll see you soon.

One hundred!
