

Dictation Contest (PRJr, 初級) No. 109

Hello, everyone! Have you started writing?

Biff made an aeroplane. Mum helped her. The aeroplane looked good.

Biff wanted to fly it. She went to the park.

The aeroplane flew up. It went over the trees and the houses. Biff looked for the aeroplane. Everyone helped. She couldn't find it. She wanted to cry. She went upstairs. The aeroplane was on the bed.

Uh, lucky! OK, guys. See you soon!

Dictation Contest (PR1, 中級) No. 109

Hey, guys! How is it going?

Last time we finally finished our exciting unnamed sci-fi story which I'm sure a lot of you recognized, but now it's time to start the next part of our space adventure.

It is a dangerous time for the rebel alliance. After destroying the death star, they are on the run from the evil imperial forces. Princess Leia has led the rebels to a secret base on Hoth, a snowy ice planet. Luke Skywalker rides his tauntaun across the frozen wasteland, on the lookout for bad guys.

Ah, yes, so there is still a threat from the evil empire. Let's see what Luke and the other heroes do next time, OK? See you, guys!

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 109

Hey, guys! How are you doing?

Hope you're all still staying healthy and safe. Now there's a lot of negative news going around at the moment and not just relating to the Corona virus pandemic, but international politics and the states of the world in general. So, here's a relatively amusing new story for you.

Listen to this.

London's famous Tower Bridge, which crossed the river Thames in the heart of the British capital, was stuck open August 22nd, leaving traffic chaos and onlookers amazed at the sight. The historic bascule and suspension bridge failed to close after opening to allow ships to pass underneath on the Thames. The city of London police tweeted shortly after 5 p.m. that the bridge was closed to pedestrians and traffic and that mechanics were working to fix the problem. An hour later, police tweeted that the bridge had reopened.

Huh! So an hour might not seem like that much of an inconvenience, but as well as being one of the world's most famous tourist attractions, Tower Bridge is also pretty heavily used road, so I can imagine that this caused a bit of a problem.

Alright guys, well until next time study hard, stay safe and I'll see you soon.