

Dictation Contest (PRJr, 初級) No. 476

Hello! Welcome back to PR Junior.

This is the last movie about Fluffy the puppy.

Tom set Fluffy free from the hole. Buddy ran round and round Fluffy in circles, barking happily. He led the way as Tom carried the tired puppy home to his happy owners. "He looks more like Scruffy than Fluffy now," they said. "Clever dog, Buddy!"

Everyone had a happy ending! Isn't that great?

That's all for today. See you next time. Bye!

Dictation Contest (PR 1, 中級) No. 476

Hi there! Welcome back to PR1.

What do you call a place where you can buy a wide variety of food, beverages, and household products? Yes! It's a supermarket. How do you decide what you're going to buy in a supermarket? Do you look in the refrigerator and make a list? Do you think about what you want to cook and then buy the food you need? Even if you do these things, the supermarket makes some of your decisions for you. There are some people who have studied how to make people buy more food in a supermarket. They do all kinds of things that you do not even notice.

This is all for today. I'll show you some examples of [these] studies in the next videos. Bye!

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 476

Hello, everyone! Welcome back to PR2.

This is the second half of the story about the mayor elections. Let's begin!

When the votes were totaled, Mr. Smith won easily. But when he took office, he didn't know what to do. He tried to hide his ignorance by working in secrecy. He added a law to the city's constitution that prevented the citizens from seeing the mayor. He even censored newspapers that tried to disseminate information about his inability to help the people.

Soon, however, Mr. Smith became infamous for his poor leadership. There was an outburst of anger among the citizens. They were full of remorse for their misguided decision to elect an ignorant mayor. They voted to remove Mr. Smith and let Mr. Peterson take over. Immediately, Mr. Peterson proved that he was a great mayor. He abolished Mr. Smith's law, and he was willing to talk openly with everyone. He tackled important issues and amended unfair laws in the city's charter.

The citizens learned that a pleasant appearance and nice words do not make a good leader. The most important qualities are intelligence and a desire to help others.

Well, that is all for today! I hope you learned a few things about judging a book by its cover. See you!
