

Dictation Contest (PRJr, 初級) No. 492

Hello! Welcome to PR Junior.

Let's continue our story about the party!

Our mom also said: "You will have to play quietly, because old people don't like too much noise."

Then, our dad said: "You will need to turn the music down, because grandma won't like loud music. She likes slow dancing, so don't dance like wild things. Use your best manners."

That doesn't sound like a very fun party, does it? This is it for today! Bye!

Dictation Contest (PR 1, 中級) No. 442

Hi, there! This is PR1.

He didn't tie up the wolf so that it couldn't eat the goat. He didn't hang the basket of cabbages from a tree so that the goat couldn't get them. Then, what did he do? First, the man took the goat across the river. Then, he went back and took the big basket of cabbages across. But, when he left the cabbages, he put the goat into the boat and took it back across the river. When he reached his side of the river, the man put the wolf into the boat and left the goat behind. Then, he took the wolf across and left it with the cabbages. Finally, he went back and brought the goat across again.

See you later!

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 492

Hello, everyone! This is PR2 and today we are going to continue broadening our knowledge on the topic of overpopulation. Let's go!

People are realizing they can no longer justify their wasteful behavior or defer action to fix it. Many car companies already have patents on prototypes for very efficient cars. Such cars waste no resources and produce no pollution. A conversion to clean cars means that petroleum can be saved for the future. In addition, the environmental sectors of many governments are setting strict rules for industries that pollute too much. If companies do not abide by the standards, they are penalized with higher taxes. In some cases, their operations might be suspended altogether.

Food is also an issue that is being tackled. Many countries are now subscribing to the point of view that immediate action is needed. They are determining ways to export goods to people in need, so that no one goes hungry. Experts will continue to come up with ideas for the future, and a synthesis of these ideas will help to support the growing population.

This is the end of today's text. As you probably heard, many problems have [arisen] due to the Earth's overpopulation. I believe we, as people, should all strive to keep our planet alive and well.

What do you think? Let me know next time we see each other! For now – goodbye!