

Dictation Contest (PRJr, 初級) No. 507

Hello there, everyone! How are you? Welcome to PR Junior!

A lot of homework! How about going to your house after school? Let's study together!

That sounds good! But my father is cooking dinner tonight. He's making his famous pasta.

I know! I love your dad's pasta!

Why don't we study at the school library after school? Then you can come to my house and [we can] enjoy the pasta together!

Cool! I'll see you after school, then.

This is all for today. See you later!

Dictation Contest (PR 1, 中級) No. 507

Hello! Welcome back to PR1.

This is the fourth part of the rocky shore report story. Let's see what else the children wrote in the report.

They made a list of rules of the sea. "Please help to save the rocky shore before it is too late," they wrote.

People who read the report said, "There is still time to save the rock pools if everybody helps. Let's send the report to other schools and towns."

Before long, a reporter visited Hilltop School to interview the children about the problem. Their report was published in the newspaper. The next day, television cameras were taken to the school and to the beach. That night, everyone watched the report on television.

This is it for today! Let's continue in the next video. Bye-bye!

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 507

Hello, everyone! Welcome back to PR2.

This is the second half of the story about the girl that got kidnapped. Let's continue!

The dirty man spit when he talked. A string of saliva hung from his moist lips. Lucy was terrified and intimidated by the horrible man. But she knew she had to escape somehow. Eventually, the man yawned. Lucy waited quietly until he fell asleep. As he slept, she carefully wiggled her arms and legs until the ropes became loose. She slipped out of the ropes and carefully opened the door. She sprinted to the bus depot and boarded a bus to the police station. She told the police what happened, and they arrested the kidnapper. The kids at school were amazed. They asked her, "Weren't you too scared to escape?" She said, "Nope. I knew that I had to be brave to get out of there!"

The kids were very tolerant of Lucy from then on. They even decided that they would emulate her bravery if they got into a tough situation like that.

I am so glad that Lucy managed to escape and that her classmates learned to respect her more. Stay safe everyone, and I'll see you again in class! See you!
