

Dictation Contest (PRJr 初級) No. 52

Hello everyone, this is Bina. Today for our PR.Jr dictation contest we are gonna read something from the Eiken 4 exam. Are you ready?

At two o'clock, Suzu looked around. There were many people in the café, and they were eating and drinking. She thought, "It's a little noisy now." So, she went home. Suzu enjoyed her day at the bookstore.

Dictation Contest (PR1 中級) No. 52

Hey everyone, this is PR 1 dictation. We will use the Eiken level 2 textbook. It's gonna be another conversation. Two people will be talking.

Good morning Karen. Are you coming to the meeting for the school magazine tonight? It starts at six o'clock. I'm not sure, Luke. I have swimming practice until six. We have to get the magazine ready by Tuesday, and we could really use everybody's help. Ok then. I'll come. But I'll be a little late.

The voices are terrible but I hope you guys got that I'll see you guys in the next video. Bye.

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 52

Hello everyone. This is Bina and for today's PR2 dictation contest we are gonna be reading a section from the Rikkyo University entrance exam. Are you ready?

The vacuum was a landmark homeware invention. Its salient feature was that for the first time in the history of housekeeping, dust was removed from the great dust collectors -rugs, carpets, curtains, and upholstered cushions- while the items remained in place in the house. Previously, to prevent dust from resettling on furnishings, items were hauled outdoors, hung over lines and leaned against fences, and whipped. This annual ritual, spring cleaning, could often be a week long chore that disrupted a family's routine. With the arrival of the vacuum cleaner, every daily or weekly cleaning became in effect a spring cleaning.

Great job everybody, see you next time
