

Dictation Contest (PRJr, 初級) No. 541

Hello! Welcome back to PR Junior.

Did you go to school today?

Yes, I went to school today. Were you there?

No, I didn't go. I've been sick.

That sucks. Do you want the assignment from English class?

That would be nice, thank you!

No problem!

I will be glad to do the same for you when you're sick.

Well, thank you! I hope to see you at school tomorrow.

That's all for today. See you later!

Dictation Contest (PR 1, 中級) No. 541

Hello! Welcome back to PR1.

Today's movie is the second part of the tortoise's trick. Remember that the tortoise was going to play a trick? Let's find out what it was!

The tortoise said: "He will think he is just racing against me, but there will really be three of us in the race. When we win, we will be able to have all the vegetables for ourselves without greedy Hare eating any. Early the next morning, Tortoise's brother and sister plodded to the field, where they ate a delicious breakfast of cabbage leaves. Then sister tortoise went halfway along the row and hid herself behind the cabbages. Brother Tortoise walked on to the end of the row and hid under thick cabbage leaves.

That's all for today. Bye-bye!

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 541

Hello, everyone! Welcome back to PR2!

Today, I'm going to read you a story about two friends who decided to bet on who could take more bites of a chili. This is bound to be an amusing story. Let's begin!

Ray finished running a relay and joined his friend Brenda in the cafeteria. He asked, "What's for lunch?"

"Sesame chicken. It's okay, except the meat's charred. Oh, and watch out for the chili peppers," Brenda said.

"Chilies don't bother me!" said Ray.

"My stepmother says you should be careful with them," replied Brenda.

An argument ensued about eating chilies.

"Chilies aren't so bad. I bet I can take more bites of this chili than you," Ray said.

Brenda was wary of eating the pepper. Despite her reluctance, she didn't want to say no to the bet. She wavered about whether to do it or not. She negotiated the details. "What will the winner get?" she asked.

"The loser has to carry the winner's books for a year! I'll even let you go first."

Brenda replied, "Fine, but to clarify, you'll carry my books for the entire school year, right?"

Ray restated the agreement, "That's right... I'll carry your books all year if you win – which you won't!"

That is all for the first part of the story! Bye-bye!