

Dictation Contest (PRJr 初級) No. 57

Hello guys. Today we will be reading Spirited Away.

Hey, that looks great. I wonder what this is called. Oh it's delicious. Chihiro, you have to taste this. I don't want any. We are going get into trouble. Let's just get out of here. Don't worry. You have got daddy here.

Good job, everyone. See you next week.

Dictation Contest (PR1 中級) No. 57

How's everyone doing? This is PR 1 dictation and today we will use the Eiken level 2 textbook. We're gonna have a conversation today, so two people will be talking to each other. Ok, let's start.

Mom, the computer just shut down suddenly. I bet I lost the paper I was writing for my history class. I was almost finished with it. I've told you a hundred times that you need to save your work, Danny. Why didn't you? I was busy writing that I didn't even think about it. Well, try restarting the computer. Maybe we can get your paper back.

I hope you guys understood that. I will see you guys in the next video.

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 57

Hey everyone. For today's PR 2 dictation, we are gonna be reading from the entrance exam of Hitotsubashi University. Are you ready?

Nowadays, we praise our children, praise self-confidence in academic performance. It is commonly believed rise and fall together. But current research suggests, otherwise, over the past decade a numbers of studies on self-esteem have come to the conclusion that praising a child as clever may not help her at school. In fact, it might cause her not to try her best. Often, a child will react to praise by quitting. Why make new drawing if you already have made the best? Or a child may simply repeat the same work. Why draw something new or in a new way if old way always gets applause?

Ok everybody. See you next time.
