

Dictation Contest (PRjr. 初級) No. 6

Anda: What have you guys been doing while staying at home?

Tomohiro: I have been watching movies, playing video games, and I have also been learning how to play the guitar.

Tim: Oh, that's cool. I have been learning how to bake cupcakes.

Anda: That's a great idea. I might try it too.

Dictation Contest (PR1,中級) No. 6

Tim: Oh, I've been so bored recently.

Tomohiro: Yeah, it's so annoying. I have to stay at home all day long.

Anda: Guys, there are still plenty of things you can do at home.

Tim: Like what?

Anda: Like you can watch a movie, read a nice book, or maybe listen to some music.

Tim: But I've done that already.

Anda: Well, it's also a good opportunity to learn a new skill.

Tomohiro: Oh, yeah I have always wanted to learn how to cook but I have always been too busy.

Anda: Well, now you have lots of time. For me, I have been learning how to edit videos by watching tutorials on YouTube.

Tim: Hmm yeah, and maybe it's a good chance for me to practice my basketball skills.

Anda: Well, maybe not that, but you can still do exercises inside the house, for example, using these!

Tomohiro: Oh, that's a great idea, especially for you, Tim.

Tim: Yeah, maybe you're right.

Dictation Contest (PR2, 上級) No.6

Bina: What have you got there buddy?

Tim: Oh, it's just a newspaper article that I thought was quite interesting.

Bina: Oh, really? Why don't you read me some of it? I'd love to hear it.

Tim: Oh, okay! "The northern English town of Stockport has a new hero in the battle to keep kids entertained during the coronavirus lockdown: Spider-Man! Jason Baird, a local 34-year-old martial arts teacher, has taken to dressing up as the Marvel superhero for his daily jog. He even performs acrobatic jumps and somersaults."

Bina: Why did you stop? I'd love to hear more. Keep going, I'm all ears!

Tim: "On April 1st, Baird stopped by an elementary school and crouched down, Spidey-style to wave at the children. Following his visit to the school, Baird posed for a selfie with a policeman. Britain has been in lockdown since late March. Residents can only leave their homes for four reasons: shopping for daily needs, one form of exercise, providing medical services, or essential work."

Bina: Wow that was very interesting. Thanks for sharing it,

Tim: You're welcome.
