Dictation Contest (PR 1, 中級) No. 700

Hi, everyone. Welcome back to PR1.

Today, I'm going to talk about the Independence Day in the United States. Now, take a listen:

The fourth of July is Independence Day in the United States. Celebrating it is part of American culture. Having a barbecue or party with friends and watching fireworks are popular activities. There's a famous event at the Hatch Shell in downtown Boston every year. It is the Boston Pops Fireworks Spectacular which started in 1973. The Boston Pops Orchestra have a large outdoor concert that begins early in the evening. More than 500,000 people go to see this event. If someone cannot go, then that person can watch it on live television. Many famous guests go on the show too. After the concert, there's a huge fireworks show.

That's it for today. How was it? I'll see you next time.

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 700

Hello, everyone! Welcome back to PR2.

Today, you are going to listen to a text about a healer. Let's begin!

Years ago, I worked at a small health clinic in a remote country. I had gone there to treat an obscure syndrome. It attacked people's lungs, causing them to need a respirator to breathe. I was trying out a new medication to treat these people instead of using a respirator. If I was successful, I would become famous.

Everything was going fine until war broke out in a nearby country. Many people from that country fled the hostile invading army. The army wanted to dominate the people, but the people didn't want to be oppressed. So they walked hundreds of miles across barren land to get away.

Some of these people came to our clinic for treatment. I talked with them and learned of their difficulties. They did not beg or complain. I was impressed by their dignity.

There was one woman I will never forget. Her son suffered from malnutrition and stomach pain, and she didn't know what to do. Neither did I. I was not adept at treating malnutrition. Nonetheless, when I saw her sadness, I knew I had to help her son.

That was all for today! Come back next time to find out what happens next! Bye-bye!
