

Dictation Contest (PR Jr, 初級) No. 759

Hello everyone! Welcome back to PR Jr.

Today, we will hear the last part of "Feed the Ducks". Let's begin!

Beth saw five swans. "Are you hungry?" she asked. She gave five pieces of bread to the swans. Then she ate a piece, too.

Finally, Beth saw six ducks. "The ducks look hungry," said Grandpa. Beth looked in her bag. She only had one piece of bread left. One piece of bread for six hungry ducks! Oh, no... Well, that's the end of the story.

See you guys next time, bye-bye!

Dictation Contest (PR 1, 中級) No. 759

Hi guys! Welcome back to PR1!

Today you are going to listen to a story about camels in Australia.

Camels were first taken to Australia in the middle of the 19th century. They were brought from places like Africa and India. Camels can travel up to 70 kilometers a day and survive without water for a long time. Because of this, people often used them in the deserts of central and Western Australia, where the weather is very hot and dry. They rode the camels and used them to carry goods over long distances.

This changed in the 1920s. At that time, cars and trucks were becoming more common, so the camels were no longer needed.

That is all for today, bye-bye!

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 759

Hello, everyone and welcome back to PR2!

In this video, you are going to listen to the second part of the story about the two brothers – James and Matt. Let's find out what happened after James had finished his sculpture!

Matt was proud of his work, but when James saw the statue, he laughed aloud.

"What's so funny?" Matt asked.

James replied, "Your ignorance makes me laugh. Don't you know that Tut was only a teenager when he was a pharaoh? Let me help you. I'll supervise your work. I'll give you feedback, and we'll make this into a great monument."

Matt got another cube of stone. James told him what Tut looked like. "Make him tall with good posture," James said. "And make sure there is symmetry in his body."

Matt conferred with James about every detail. For ten consecutive hours, the brothers worked. At last, the finished statue was situated in front of the museum. Everyone applauded the brothers' good work.

"We worked together very well. I guess we are compatible after all," Mark said.

James replied, "I agree! When we combine our talents, we are capable of greatness."

That was all for today's video. I hope you enjoyed the story and that you learned something from it. See you next time! Bye-bye!
