Dictation Contest (PR 1, 中級) No. 834

Hello, everyone! Welcome to PR1.

Today we'll be talking about a new invention. Take a listen.

A new invention exciting travelers is luggage that does not have to be carried. These new suitcases have sensors that show a traveler's exact location by keeping track of him or her through a smartphone app. These suitcases control where they move in order to keep up with travelers automatically. Most have remote lock systems. Some instantly lock themselves if the signal between the sensor and the phone is lost. These suitcases are now on the market, and are expected to significantly bring down the stress of travelers with disabilities who have trouble transporting their luggage.

Okay, that's all for now. See you all in class and have a great day! Bye!

Dictation Contest (PR2 上級) No. 834

Hello, everyone! Welcome back to another PR2 video.

Today, I'm going to read you the second half of the story about a father who teaches his daughter an important lesson. Last time we finished right when the dad initiated his plan. Let's see what happens next!

Jessie began to panic. She thought she might make her usual mistakes, which would precipitate a disaster. However, she had to listen to her dad and act accordingly. She pulled up the anchor with all of her might. She remembered to overlap the sails to offset the wind. She steered the boat around buoys where the water was shallow. When they got to shore, Michael came out from the deck.

Jessie said, "I thought you were trapped!"

Michael laughed. He said, "It wasn't a genuine emergency. I distorted the truth to test your abilities. Look at what a great job you did getting the boat home safely! I knew you could do it."

To honor his daughter, Michael decided to [rename] his boat. He designated it "Jessie's pride" and painted the name on the fore of the ship. Jessie finally had something to be proud of.

That was all for today's dictation. It seems that the dad's plan worked in the end. Do you think Jessie was happy with it in the end? Let me know in class! Bye-bye!
